COMMUNICATION While working as a swing manager at McDonald's, I had to develop communication skills to work with a diverse group of employees. As a director of youth ministry, I developed skills working with church councils and local schools and businesses. Serving as the Program Director within a consortium over the past three years, I have strengthened communication and collaboration between private industry and the academic institution.

LEADERSHIP Throughout my life, I have sought to improve myself and take on leadership responsibilities. While in high school, I was the commander of my local Civil Air Patrol Squadron. After high school, when working at McDonald's, I quickly moved up to manager. Later, I moved into Youth Ministry taking on a leadership role by organizing youth activities and fundraisers. While in the military, I also had the opportunity to take on leadership roles overseas as the EVAC NCOIC and Unit Prevention Leader. In this role, I received awards and commendations from my commanders on efficiencies I was able to put into place. While at F-M Ambulance service, I have also shown my leadership abilities being a crew leader, performing as a leadership intern, and acting as a charge medic on my shift. Currently, I am the team leader for the tactical paramedics on the Red River Valley SWAT Team and taking on the role of Paramedic Program Director working with my co-workers to continue to bring an excellent program to our current students as well as preparing to expand the online program next year.
